Varanasi- Prayagraj- Ayodhya
4 Night / 5 Days

Spiritual Triangle of India

The Spiritual Triangle of India refers to the sacred circuit connecting Varanasi, Ayodhya, and Prayagraj, three of the holiest cities in Hinduism. Each of these cities has its own unique spiritual, historical, and cultural significance, forming a deeply interconnected pilgrimage circuit.

- Varanasi, also known as Kashi or the "City of Light", is one of the oldest continuously inhabited cities in the world. It is believed to be the place where the physical and spiritual worlds meet. This ancient city is dedicated to Lord Shiva, the destroyer and regenerator in Hindu mythology. It is home to the Kashi Vishwanath Temple, one of the twelve Jyotirlingas, and the sacred Ghats of the Ganges, where pilgrims perform rituals to cleanse their souls. Varanasi is also the site of the spectacular Ganga Aarti, a daily ritual that draws thousands of devotees and travelers. Additionally, Sarnath, located just outside the city, is where Lord Buddha delivered his first sermon, making it a sacred place for Buddhists as well.
- Prayagraj, formerly known as Allahabad, is revered as the "King of Pilgrimages" due to its significance as the meeting point of three sacred rivers – the Ganga, Yamuna, and the mythical Saraswati. This confluence, known as the Triveni Sangam, is considered the holiest place for a ritual bath, believed to wash away sins and liberate the soul. The city hosts the Kumbh Mela, the world's largest religious gathering, held every 12 years. It is also home to the ancient Allahabad Fort, which houses the mysterious Akshayavat (immortal banyan tree), and the historic Anand Bhavan, the ancestral home of the Nehru family.
- Ayodhya is revered as the birthplace of Lord Rama, the seventh incarnation of Vishnu, and the setting of the epic Ramayana. It symbolizes the ideals of dharma (righteousness) and the victory of good over evil. Key attractions in Ayodhya include the Ram Janmabhoomi Temple, the sacred site believed to be the exact birthplace of Lord Rama, the Hanuman Garhi, a hilltop temple dedicated to Lord Hanuman, and the Saryu River, where it is believed that Lord Rama took Jal Samadhi (water samadhi) after completing his earthly life. The Kanak Bhawan, known as Sita's palace, is another significant site, believed to have been gifted to her by her mother-in-law, Kaushalya.
